Walter,

I'm not impressed with MOAA's website nor with any of the solutions they provided. We created our own website many, many years ago and we found that to be the best way to keep in touch with and help our members.

Over time, the sites care and feeding became a real burden. I had been spending 8-10 hours a day, every day, using various Adobe software to make changes, alterations, improvements, additions to the web site and I cried for help. Someone provided contact information for Joe Leonard and he saved me. Our chapter has been using the services of Joe Leonard for the heavy lifting on our website and that was my salvation. Joe redesigned the site using his propriety software and things have operated smoothly and easily ever since. I no longer have to worry about writing code to make changes to the website. I pass the requirement to Joe and he takes care of it. I just make sure we continue to provide timely useful info for our members, add photos of events, inform the members of events, etc. Life is easier. I'll put contact info below and I suggest you contact him and see if his services can help you.

I'm the webmaster for moaa-centralohio.org and interested in your experience with MOAA Website solutions. I'm looking for ways to improve my site while lessening the burden...in particular membership only areas and limiting access to areas by certain board members. I'd appreciate any comments about Website Solutions as I explore different vendors. Thanks
